Postgraduate Law Courses

Suffolk University Announces Plan for Second Term

Alumni Meeting

A representative group of Alumni gathered in the auditorium of Suffolk University on November 14th. One very interesting feature of the evening was a lecture on Ballistics given by Inspector Ely of the Boston Police. The chief purpose of the meeting, however, was to discuss how the Girardette School might assist Suffolk Alumni. The law is undergoing such rapid evolution that lawyers all over the country are clamoring for semioriented advanced courses to aid them in keeping abreast of developments.

Voluntary Professional Corporation

Some of the age President Archer appointed a committee to study and report on how the University might aid its graduates. John N. Ottobach, '18, Chairman of that Committee, rendered an illuminating report. The Alumni group unanimously endorsed the idea of all advanced professional courses. A questionnaire, circulated at the time, supplied data on subjects that were desired by the Alumni, some of which will be offered in January 1940. Others will follow in due course. Subjects favored being Recent Development in Labor Laws, Comparative Practice, Advanced Practice Technique, Federal Law and Practice, Market Research, Income Taxation.

Practice Court®

A Practice Court will be offered this year in which every phase of a law suit will be handled. Judges will be Mr. T. S. Hester, Judge of the District Court, and John L. Burley, Jr., his former assistant attorney general and lawyer of long experience. Mr. Hester will preside, and Mr. Burley will be director of the course of trials to be held in the course. Members of the class will be selected by the faculty and will receive a system of rotation giving each member practical experience in all phases of the work. Mr. Daughue will prepare the features of the various matters, but will not appear as counsel. The course of trial shall show the testimony will be thus stimulating great interest in cross examination of witnesses and in the presentation of evidence. Trial conduct and skills lawyers will have opportunity to improve their trial technique. The course will be held in the afternoon of the following January 28th and 29th, from 2:00 P. M. to 5:00 P. M. The tuition for regular students is $20.00 and for non-regular students $25.00. The tuition for school will be $20.00 and all others $25.00.

Public Utilities Course

By PROF. JOHN S. O'DONNELL E

The Graduate School of Law plans an important innovation of legal instruction in a Practice Court. This will be conducted by Judge Edward T. Simonson, District Judge, District of Columbia, and Judge John M. Harley, of the District of Columbia. Both are members of the School faculty, both formerly Assistant Attorneys General and have long experience in court proceedings. The first few weeks will consist of trials in the Municipal Court of the District. Members of the faculty will be divided into firms of two members each. Cases will be assigned to each firm and will be argued on actual law firm will be assigned for trial. One firm will represent the plaintiff and another the defendant. Witnesses will be interviewed and cross conducted from drawing the facts to argue the case to the Judge. Hearings will be held in the Municipal Court. Proceedings will be exactly as in the actual trial of cases in court with examination and cross examination. The second half of the course will be devoted to the Superior Court.

Although the Practice Court will be given in conjunction with the master's course, it may be taken separately. Sessions will be held on one evening each week.

The value of the Practice Court for the newly admitted attorney, or for any attorney who has not had much trial experience, should be obvious to any one who has ever watched inexperienced attorneys struggling to present cases in court. The size of the class will be limited in order to give each member adequate time for actual trial work. Those who wish to take part should register at once.

COURSES IN CURRENT LAW

Next, it is planned to form an advisory group of labor for the re-examination of current legal matters, such as the national labor relations law and other recent developments in the law relating to labor as well as the new law relating to trade practices and unfair competition. Questions of practice generally, and other matters of importance to practicing lawyers will be taken up from time to time. The procedure will be as follows: At each meeting a prepared paper reflecting about an hour's work by a subject approved by the chairman, followed by questions and discussion of the subjects. A type-written synopsis, with citations to the sources, will be distributed.

Will Offer Entire First Year Program; Classes To Be Extended Until August; Students Eligible To Enter Regular Sophomore Class in September

President Gleason L. Archer of Suffolk University announces a new plan to be put into effect by the University on January 29th, and to become a regular policy of the institution hereafter.

A new Freshman class will be formed in each of the undergraduate arts departments to cover the same work that has been given to those who entered in September. By continuing from January until the middle of August it will be possible to offer the entire first-year program, thus rendering these students eligible to enter the regular Sophomore class in September. This will allow for a month's vacation before the opening of the University's year in September.

The new plan applies to entering students in the following departments: College of Liberal Arts, College of Business Administration, College of Journalism, and Pre-law.

Much consideration, in particular, has been given to the courses offered at the Colleges of Business Administration and Journalism which will reopen on September 23, 1940, with three classes: 1st year (academic); 2nd year (academic); 3rd year (2 semester hours academic, 15 semester hours professional). Fourth and fifth years will be entirely professional, but because of the youth of the department such courses will not be offered until 1941 and 1942 respectively.

All teaching will be conducted by experienced day university teachers, who represent eighty-five per cent of the faculty staff in the College. The departments of Suffolk University, through regularly employed lecturers, include the departments of M.P.T. Taft, and other colleges), the M.P.T. of these men to the invitation, extended to them by President Archer for permanent lectureships at Suffolk was enthusiastic. Steps were taken at once to arrange these visiting programs and to make the necessary financial obligations. Thus, the same quality of instruction was secured for Suffolk's employed students which is enjoyed by students who enroll in the day universities.

Tuition will not exceed $160 a year. A Registration Fee of $5.00 and an annual $10.00 University Fee will be charged. An additional laboratory fee commensurate with the course elected.

Lectures are held four days or evenings per week, from 9:15 A.M. to noon, or 6:00 P.M. to 8:50 P.M. Laboratory courses will be given on Wednesdays.

John J. Murray To Teach Public Utilities	Italian Club Gains Fast In Popularity

Boston University
Professor Joins Suffolk
Graduate School of Law

Professor John J. Murray, for thirteen years on the faculty of the College of Business Administration of Boston University, has just been added to the faculty of the Graduate School of Law of Suffolk University.

Outstanding Record

Professor Murray will teach the Law of Public Utilities. Since leaving Boston University he has, among other important appointments, been Chairman of the Massachusetts Department of Public Utilities. Recently he has served as a Special Counsel to the Chairman of the Federal Communications Commission in Washington.

Italian Club Gains Fast In Popularity

Will Operate
Day and Evening
Divisions Separately

Herein of greatly increased student interest in selecting the Italian Club as their choice of a student activity and because a single convenient meeting time for day and evening divisions could not be agreed upon, the Italian Club is now functioning as two parts of one unit with one President coordinating the activities of both sections—President Rocco A. Corbelli, Jace. 1935 with the assistance of Mr. Frank L. Porcino, instructor in Italian, has drawn up a plan of meetings and a purpose of existence which have already proved their popularity and efficiency. The day students meet at noon, the evening students at

Elect New Officers for Student Council

The interest and enthusiasm of the student body, held at high pitch during the two-day session for the filing of nomination papers, rallied to the support of the favored candidates and the outcome of the Student Council election brought on October 20th many new names to the official roll call of class and division representatives, with only five members winning re-election.

It was the first election to be held under the newly-outfitted constitution. The polls were open for several hours in the morning and again in the evening to meet the convenience of the maximum number of students in all departments. Under the efficient supervision of a corps of staff workers, the entire election was completed in less than 24 hours.

George G. Marvin of M.I.T. Is Chairman; New Laboratory Equal To Best

If plans that President Areher is now working on can be brought to a successful conclusion in time, Suffolk University will inaugurate next September a Chemistry Department equal to the best of its kind in the United States. That this statement is no exaggeration will appear when it is known that the laboratory is being planned by eminent experts and will embody the latest improvements in technical equipment. George G. Suffolk Is Back On the Air

Suffolk University started a new series of radio broadcasts on Sunday afternoon, December 10, at 3:15 P.M. over Station WEEZ, WEEZ, a fifteen minute period with Suffolk's well known President, Gleason I. Archer, as the microphone.

In his initial talk which was packed with human interest and proved to be of vital concern to all forward-looking people, Dr. Archer discussed the "Two Faces of Youth: a Chance or Opportunity?" and pointed out trends of times that indicate the answer to this question, an answer that ultimately credits American Youth with the strong determination to overcome what ever difficulties or hardships might oppose them in their struggle for social status in an economic order which has suffered serious strains during the depression.

Against a background of poverty and social upheaval, the President pictured a thousand plagues which have been unmissed upon our young state of progressive pauperism, but he maintained also that the people of today, as well as the generation of "tomorrow" as well as the generations of tomorrow, are not only more dangerous than the evils they were meant to cure.

For lasting relief, the President continued, the world must be built according to principles that do away with the "Something for Nothing" theory, that old fashioned school of thought that has been the cause of so much of the trouble in the world. In the past, the boys and girls of today are to play their parts, provided, of course, that they are educationally and spiritually well equipped.

In the opinion of Dr. Archer, old time poverty and poor preparation for the government for evening and part-time schools, society should make it its first duty to provide adequate means for higher education of the masses after their day's work, so that any boy or girl, irrespective of financial circumstances, may hope to qualify for the great tasks of the immediate future.

The President expressed pride in having been able to contribute his share in the building up of evening and part-time schools and gave a synopsis of the history of Suffolk University which at the outset was merely an experiment in education in the higher levels of working men and women, their time after dinner in less than two years' time that standing professors of Harvard College and Massachusetts Institute of Technology became interested in this truly democratic enterprise in education and are representing today eighty five per cent of Suffolk's teaching staff.

Dr. Archer ended his highly informative talk with the statement that the evening university on Beacon Hill was beginning to feel its attraction as an educational circle whose leaders now realize the tremendous value to industry of a personnel to whom technical education had been rendered available in their youth.

The series of Suffolk University Radio Talks over WEEZ-WEEZ will continue every Sunday until February 1940.

Dr. Ockenga Appointed to Board of Trustees

Dr. Harold I. Ockenga

Dr. Harold I. Ockenga, Pastor of the Park Street Church of Boston, has just been elected to the Board of Trustees of Suffolk University.

In the three years since Dr. Ockenga came to Boston to assume the Pastorate at Park Street, he has manifested a lively interest in the problems of college students, especially of those who have to struggle for a living. For this reason he was first attracted to Suffolk University and its unique service to young people who have to earn a living while going to school.

He delivered the Baccalaureate Address at Suffolk University last June and gave a lecture before the Boston Lecturers in the Radio Institute on June 14th, 1939.

Dr. Ockenga was born in Chicago on July 10th, 1895. He was educated at Tufts University and the Westminster Seminary in Philadelphia. He was his Doctor of Divinity degree "three years ago but in June of last year received a D.D. from the University of Pittsburgh and a Litt.D. from Suffolk University.

He is the author of two books: "The Religious Affections" and "Our Protestant Heritage," a number of the Boston Rotary Club and a holder of the F. & N. B. He is deeply interested in social problems and public welfare problems.

PROFESSOR MURRAY

He is a regular practitioner before the Securities and Exchange Commission and other Federal Bureaus.

Suffolk Graduate

Professor Murray is a World War veteran with a distinguished record. He was wounded in action in France and decorated for heroism. While teaching Economics at Boston University he took a law course at Suffolk and was graduated in the Class of 1929.

No Additional Charge

The course in Public Utilities is included in the 1939-1940 program of the Graduate School, hence no additional charge is regular members of the class. There's still pay $25 for the course. Lectures will be held on Friday evenings, beginning February 2nd and continue until June, from 6:00 to 7:30 P.M. The dinner in American Restaurant-Hibernia is scheduled for the same time, from 7:15 to 8:30 P.M.

ALUMNI NOTES

will be furnished to each member. All proceedings will be in English. Meetings are to be held weekly or biweekly, rather than the law school on at some other convenient place. Membership in this group will be limited to attorneys of sufficient experience to profit from this type of work. Those who are interested should communicate with John N. O'Donnell, (Suffolk 1939), 15 State Street, Boston, Massachusetts.

CHEMISTRY

tute of Technology, will teach Chemistry at Suffolk University and become Chairman of the undergraduate department of Chemistry. He will be able to provide teachers whenever they may be necessary from the M.I.T. teaching staff.

"Streamlined" tables

The Chemistry Laboratory will be on the top floor of the University Building, at the Temple Street side. Excellent lighting facilities for day and evening needs are assured. The Chemistry tables have been designed by Dr. Marvin and his associates at Technology, and the work enables that results of costly experimentation at both M.I.T. and Harvard. The old fashioned type of hoods and much of the elaborate and expensive plumbing will be eliminated in favor of a new type of table that may be described as "streamlined" and highly efficient.

Long range plans

The Hall which has a large floor area will permit tables and equipment for one hundred and fifty students at a time. A supply room of adequate capacity will occupy the north end of the laboratory. This will accommodate the undergraduate chemistry department. Long range plans are being made for the teaching of industrial chemistry and advanced courses, looking to a complete department in chemical engineering.

CHRISTMAS DANCE

Against a background of silver stars and blue and white streamers, a gay crowd gathered in the holiday season at Suffolk with a Christmas dance held in Hall 6 on Saturday night, December 9, under the auspices of the Suffolk Players. Poinsettias and silver bells, Christmas stockings, and scenes of Santa Claus and his reindeer, all dispersed about the walls of the room, added to the Yuletide atmosphere.

The music, furnished by Timothy Jackson, included selections of all kinds, ranging from sweet and slow foxtrots to ray waltzes and tangos.

Dancing continued from eight-thirty till midnight. During an intermission at ten-thirty the dancers enjoyed light refreshments of cookies and Coca-Cola.

Mrs. Wallace M. Clark and Miss Edith B. Beane acted as chairmen at the affair. Foster Church was in charge of the refreshments, and gate receipts were handled by Joseph O'Donnell and Harold Hooker, Jr. The decorations were loaned from Virginia Sargent.

Many enthusiastic comments were heard of all sides concerning the success of the function, and it has been suggested by many that informal dances of this sort be held at the university more frequently during the future.

THANKSGIVING DAY

By HOWARD H. REISER

With Europe waging a fierce war which threatens to destroy the very fundamentals of its civilization with two oceans being a sea of unknown terrors where ships warily zigzag their course through fields of magnetic mines which are Germany's most recent contribution to human progress, with several millions of soldiers in line to launch a furious attack against the enemy's forces, and thousands of civilians, among them women and children, dying in air raids on open cities, America is at peace.

In the light of these events Thanksgiving, which has not been celebrated throughout the United States, appears to be more than the customary observance of a venerable tradition.

There were the external aspects: happy people, bounding, crowded trains in joyous excitement; high ways packed with endless lines of equally crowded cars, all speeding to and fro, trying to speak for after all, traffic officers had to follow their orders even though a truck might be at stake. Towards some gay resorts, in the morning jammed with children, the children gave the thrill of their life-time, trying to catch a glimpse of the Sandusky parade, and in the afternoon, roasted turkeys, mashed potatoes, squash, steaming hot apple pudding, and the old-fashioned elder joy on the loaded dinner table, around which the family had assembled in the unanimous determination to put one aside all rules of moderation and temperance, and have their modern feast in the shade the famous Lucile had banqueted at ancient times.

This is the historical background 300 years ago, the Pilgrims Father, faced with adversity in the new world, had retained agriculture, proved to be a vicious system, and became a hindrance for all. In the third year, following the landing at Plymouth Rock, famine seemed imminent. Therefore, Governor Bradford assigned a parcel of land to each family, a measure which, as he says, "had very good success, for it made all hands very industrious." But a dry summer caused the crops to wither and trees to bloom. After that year, the Pilgrims set apart a day of humiliation, "to seek the Lord by humble and fervent prayer." Heaven's answer was a "cuckoo" crop that saved their lives. "For which merry they also set apart a day of Thanksgiving."

Generally speaking, we maintain that some fundamental idea lay at the root of all true traditions, and that the father illustrates them in doing things in the mind of this man, who, with all appearances, symbolic customs only are passed on from generation to generation. Thus, until recently, most of us used to see in the commemoration of Thanksgiving Day only a sign of patriotic reverence for a truly great period in American history, combined with a good deal of pride in the institutions of religious education, personal freedom, and independence and expressed in the celebration for our forefathers who had created them. But strange as it may seem, we forgot all about the gratitude.

At last, our attitude was changed. This year Thanksgiving Day gained new significance. Since it fell within a few weeks of the first time it really does not matter whether you were celebrating on the 26th of November 30 or New Year's, November 22—we were interested to see how many of the people and the young men and women of the day and think of the meaning of that other festival to come—peace on earth. And in a moment of honest gratitude we could say: Thank you, Lord—America is at peace.

AMBITION AND COURAGE

By MARSHALL HAHN

When I first came to classes at Suffolk University three years ago and met people here, the thing which impressed me about these people, and which will always influence my dominant concept of them, was their intensely interesting motives for coming to classes here. They did not come to classes because they were sent. They did not look like fighters for knowledge. And not one shouted "hah, hah."

They were not wild-eyed and eager. Rather, there seemed a mechanical business manner to them before going. In some of them, this mechanical manner functioned strongly after the first three or four classes, and they layed into spells of sleep. They had not yet mastered controlled relaxation, except a machine which has become the backbone practice of those going to night school. But those who took during the day and attend lectures in the evening must have completely mastered their release of energy. Otherwise, too much sleep is released during one period and the second saved for a later occasion, thus causing better sleep.

Many of these people I first met in class are still here. Others have moved, but had immediately set out to do so. It would come to the topic of "why we came to Suffolk." This blood-conscious, full-blooded man, who had graduated from high school, had been immediately set out to do so. He had friends to make a tramp through around the world. This took him three years. When he returned to Boston, he married, then decided to write. Here he was dropped because he had been the best in his class, he did not have the ability to express himself. So he decided to go to school to get this ability. He went to the University of Kansas, leaving his young wife in his care. After one year at Kansas, it matters and wife forced him to return to Boston. So he chose Suffolk to continue his quest for ability to express himself.

Another very young man told me that he had acquired a self with newspaper people, and how he had acquired a burning desire to write. So he came to Suffolk College of Journalism because he worked in a show business during the day. This was explained to me. His hands were so black—certain chemicals in rubber stained his skin. He is now son, but one day just last year I saw him on the street with a blackish, round on his shoulder, talking to some newswoman early acquaintance with newspaper people, chemicals in leather stained his hands. I admired his courage.

Then, there was the slim young lady who had studied several years in a very large office building. She felt that she was becoming unworkable doing the same thing all day every day. So, she came to Suffolk to find out about things more in interest than clerical work and to find people more interesting than stenographers. She is still here, and more happy than three years ago. And the dark, very capable young man, who was a highly trained artist in Boston, moved to Suffolk. He had been in a small Midwest town, but run away from home at 17 and came to Boston. He is a powerful teacher and found and trained him. The boy became minor, arts, literature. He learned well versed and moved in intellectual fields. Now he wanted to teach. And he came to Suffolk to win a teaching degree.

These are some of the people I remember, and their interesting motives.

LIBRARY LINES

CARROLL ROBBINS, '34

During the week of November 12th the Library, in accordance with the National Book Week, arranged several stimulating book displays.

Of chief interest was a collection of books and pamphlets, all written by persons with past or present connections at Suffolk University. A list of Suffolk authors represented follows:

President Gleason L. Archer and Mrs. Elizabeth Glenn Archer; Executive Secretary Carolyn A. Byard; Professor W. Harold Chaffin; Miss J. L. Partridge (former Law); Albert L. DeLisle; Robert W. Desmond (former); Arthur V. Getchell (Law); Donald Malcolm Green (Law); Lawrence LaFarge (Law); Joseph A. Parkes (Law); Robert E. Rogers (Law); Edward T. Simmons (Law); Kenneth B. Williams (Law); Instructor Frank L. Pizzuto (Law); and the following graduates: Frank P. Rich (Law); Joseph A. Doherty (Law); Lawrence Samuels (Law). Displayed also were books on art, books on printing and compiling of books themselves, and writing.

The art books were especially well chosen, and they appealed to both connoisseurs and neophytes.

Many new books have been acquired since the opening of school in September. Several, because of their timely subject matter in relation to world events, have helped to sustain popularity.

Renowned "Evolution of Civilization," one of the new acquisitions, has been valuable to students of history and government.

The unapologetic volume of Aldous Huxley, "Mein Kampf," in which he sets forth his ideas of conquest, has been of interest to all students, in the light of recent American affairs.

Dean Archer's book, "Big Business and Radio," highly acclaimed by experts throughout the country, has also been added to the library's collection.

Gifts of language books by Mr. Gleason L. Archer, Jr., and Mr. Frank L. Pizzuto, foreign language instructors, are greatly appreciated by the library.

Other recently acquired books, worthy of student interest, are as follows: Scott: Waverley Novels; Emerson: Poetical Works; Woolf: Mrs. Dalloway; Bruce: The American Judge; Shay: Judge Lynch; His First Han; Dan Years; Van Patten: Days of Our Years; Macaulay and Hart: Cyclopaedia of American Government; Beveridge: The Life of John Marshall (several copies available for circulation).

Suffolk's basketball team seems well on the way to success with a very large number of men turning out for the first call of Caxton Sexton.

Our beautiful Co-eds are forming a basketball team, too, and from the looks of things I wouldn't be surprised if they could give the boys basketball team a run for their money. Perhaps that's why they are forming it, who knows?
